FUTURE DIRECTIONS FOR THE RESEARCH DATA ALLIANCE

A REPORT FROM THE MEMBERSHIP CONSULTATION PROCESS

OCTOBER 2015

Summary

The Research Data Alliance (RDA) is an international community of more than 3000 people and multiple organisations dedicated to building research data sharing without barriers. The work of RDA – removing barriers and enabling sharing – is accomplished by Working Groups, Interest Groups, the Technical Advisory and Organisational Advisory boards, and the RDA Council all of which are composed of volunteers. The volunteer workers of RDA are supported by a secretariat rich in talent and low in numbers.

Council has the responsibility for the future direction of RDA. Based on feedback at a joint meeting of the leadership of RDA constituent groups held shortly after the Amsterdam Plenary, consensus was that this is a useful time to consider future directions for RDA (after its first 18 months of activity). Subsequently, Council appointed a small group to take the next steps.

The future directions consultation quickly identified that RDA must focus its efforts to ensure that volunteer efforts are maximally effective and efficiently supported. The consultation process also quickly recognised that the organisation's efforts to chart future directions had to focus on the practicable – on what could be achieved by a volunteer organisation with limited staff support. A document that focused on nice-to-haves if only resources were unconstrained would ill-serve RDA as it moves forward. Instead a future directions document should be highly focused, highly doable, include a specific set of actions, clearly outline objectives for those actions, expressly state who is responsible.

The process of consultation in the development of Future Directions for RDA began at Plenary 4 in Amsterdam, continued with a workshop prior to Plenary 5 in San Diego, the publication of a working document and a survey of the membership, a series of webinars to test interpretations of the results of the survey, a presentation on results at Plenary 6, and finally the development of this report. At the beginning, three themes quickly emerged: enhanced communication, wider engagement, and improved coordination. At each subsequent stage, the three themes were tested as to whether they really were appropriate for a set of RDA Future Directions. At each stage the three themes were endorsed as the foci for RDA Future Directions.

While the Planning Group are the nominal authors of this report, it has been really written by the RDA membership who have completely determined its content throughout the consultation process. This report documents Future Directions developed and refined by a community. It is that very community that must now execute on the actions that make directions real.

Communications

GOALS

The goal of enhanced communication is to increase RDA's impact with communities, to help promote volunteer and organizational sustainability, and to improve information dissemination and organisational efficiency. Enhanced communication will also ensure RDA remains open and welcoming to new members.

COMMUNICATIONS ACTION PLAN

Develop an integrated communications approach that includes communication to external groups, internal groups, and support for enhanced communications efforts.

SPECIFIC ACTIONS

Action 1: Identify and recruit a cohort of members who are skilled communicators, who can communicate about RDA to wider audiences as 'RDA Ambassadors'.

Action 2: Develop and offer appropriate support material and training for both RDA domain experts and RDA ambassadors. Regularly revisit the communications material and update and supplement with fresh information.

Action 3: Send updates from Council, TAB, OAB and Secretariat to the membership quarterly to ensure the membership receives up-to-date information and feels informed and invested in the various actions, decisions and outputs of the groups.

Action 4: Develop clear statements of value and compelling targeted messaging to existing and new communities, stakeholders and the membership, and share these messages broadly. Target messaging to the institutions who have a critical mass of individual members actively working on RDA products (align incentives that reward individual volunteer activity.)

Action 5: Recruit individuals/organisations to write stories/create content (specifically regional RDAs) that highlight novel individual (longevity, persistence, disruptive) and organizational contributions. Make the content creation and communication process as efficient and low-barrier as possible.

Action 6: Create and publish an RDA Annual Report targeted to internal and potential external stakeholders. Improve RDA website for better internal communication, transparency, and co-ordination and better external navigation and visibility.

Overall Intended Impact: After 3 years effort with these actions, the research communities will have a clear understanding of the role it can play in their data sharing activities. The benefits of this engagement will be clear to RDA and its stakeholders.

Engagement

GOALS: The goal of increased and improved engagement within the RDA community is to drive community cohesion, organisational health, and sustainability. The goal of increased and improved engagement between RDA and the broader community is to drive member satisfaction and community impact. The goal of improved engagement within RDA responds to the recognition that RDA depends on sustained, high quality volunteer activity for its success.

ENGAGEMENT ACTION PLAN

Develop a systemic engagement approach that enhances internal member satisfaction, and targets engagement with external stakeholders and strategic groups, and next generation leadership.

Specific actions

Action 1: Create an annual targeted list of strategic organisations, communities, professional societies, and countries that expand the engagement and impact of RDA. Devise and implement strategies to carry out these deeper engagements.

Action 2: Identify and recruit 50 members who are credible domain experts to serve as conduits between RDA and specific organisations. Empower and support these experts to facilitate joint events and activities with these organisations and RDA. These domain experts may include some who become communications ambassadors, but it is a distinct group with a distinct function.

Action 3: Continue to utilise and focus RDA Plenaries as a primary tool to increase engagement of RDA membership. Work with a broader set of communities and organisations (including industry, start-ups, and entrepreneurs) to co-locate meetings and activities that increase the impact of RDA. Work with RDA regions to develop, fund and administer travel funds for broader participation in the Plenaries.

Action 4: Recruit new generations of leadership to RDA constituent organisational groups. Develop a set of leadership development and succession plans for all constituent groups within RDA and RDA regional organisations.

Proposed next steps

RDA Council will consider this report for adoption at a meeting in November or December 2015.

Presuming Council adoption, the Secretariat will develop a framework for implementation in consultation with the newly established Directions Group that will engage the component sub-organisations of RDA in taking the actions noted in the tables above.

An implementation report could become part of the business meetings of RDA sub-organisations – Council, TAB, OAB, and the Secretariat as well as a standard agenda item during the RDA business meeting at each Plenary. The Secretary General will meet bi-annually with the Directions Group to monitor progress. Council will appoint members to the Directions Group as becomes necessary or appropriate.

A report on progress in realising the Future Directions together with RDA outputs and adoption should be the major features of the annual report recommended in Communications – Action 6.
