Training, Stewardship, and Data Management Planning (Session Summary)

About: Training modules, schools, workshops and library support for stewardship and data management.

- ‘IDEA’ (Improving Data Engagement and Advocacy) podcast recognised as valuable. Action: to publish season one of the podcast as a formal ‘Other’ RDA output.
- Re. following up on the published cookbook, session feedback supported creating an online collection of individual case studies and following up on cookbook case studies.
- Re. broader group direction, session feedback supported creating guidelines for what NOT to do to engage researchers, and creating engagement resources to showcase/argue the benefits of good data management.
- Thirteen case studies were collected during the session via the submission form.

This session provided a space for the community to acknowledge and celebrate its accomplishments in the space of creating descriptive metadata for RDM training materials. Implementations were demonstrated across three short presentations, and then participants had an opportunity to enrich their understanding of the minimal metadata schema by engaging it in an activity using it to describe materials. This was followed by a discussion of the challenges of unique disciplinary needs.
Common themes

- Recognition and Value: both sessions highlight the recognition and acknowledgment of valuable contributions - Two great interactive sessions!
- The RDA plenary session is a great venue to get wide feedback, collect use cases and engage members with new materials.
- Case studies: both groups presented examples
